BIO

Jessica Ronne is a wife, mother, author and teacher. She is also the founder of The Lucas Project, a non profit dedicated to providing respite breaks for special needs caregivers. She lives in the hills of Tennessee with her husband Ryan and eight children where they cultivate the simple life which they've discovered isn't really all that simple. She is the author of Sunlight Burning at Midnight; her memoir of beauty from ashes. She can be found at jessplusthemess.com blogging about faith, grief, food, simplicity, special needs children, blended families, and everything else in between.
